Levels of Organization

Dolphins are well known for their agility and playful behavior, making them a favorite of wildlife watchers. Many species will leap out of the water, spy-hop (rise vertically out of the water to view their surroundings) and follow ships, often synchronizing their movements with one another. Scientists believe that dolphins conserve energy by swimming alongside ships, a practice known as bow-riding.

Me to Woods-2nd Period, Woods-3rd Period

Create your own interest and 'hooking' intro paragraph to the following essay. Use one of the techniques we tried in class.

Tell about a time when you discovered something.

Just hit 'Reply' below. Do NOT create your own post please.

Desmond D. - have you ever discovered something you didn't know about someone? I have. IT was something i could not believe that one of the goodest person you ever seen got in a fight. let me tell you all about it.

Sep 21, 2011

Robrashia T. - have you ever had a family member who had cancer? well i have discovered that my grandpa had cancer when he was gettin sick and he was looking very bad. so he told my mother to dont cry at his funeral because he is in a better place. In i have also discovered that i dont need to be crying at funerals because they are going in better places in they are in better hands.

Sep 21, 2011

mitchell v. - Have you ever discovered somthing? Well i have and it was crazy i was walking done the street and heard a noise. I thought it was a snake or somthing, but it was actually a dog. It was very skinny and hungry, "I ran home and got my mom and told her i have found a dog". She said "what kind of dog is it"? I think it is a pit bull puppy so me and her went done the road.

Summary of "One More Room."

One More Room is about how this Producer, Jack, was one of Hollywood's biggest producers. He has worked there for 15 years and they ask him up to go look at the Windsor Hotel. He has to make a movie about how the hotel caught on fire, and he ends up going into a date. The police officer knocks him out of the date.

1. What do you understand the author to be saying about the Winscott Hotel in 1944?

He wanted to try and trick us as he was at the fire, but he wasn't he was imagining it for his movie. The author is trying to get us to see the image of the fire, yet, he wants us to see the movie as it is going through his mind.

One More Room

Built in 1913 by renowned architect William Lee Stoddard, the Winecoff Hotel was one of Atlanta's tallest and most luxurious hotels. Standing fifteen stories tall with an open-air terrace overlooking Peachtree Street, the hotel was strategically located in the heart of Atlanta's retail district.

Video Interview of the WineCoff Hotel Fire:

poster yourself

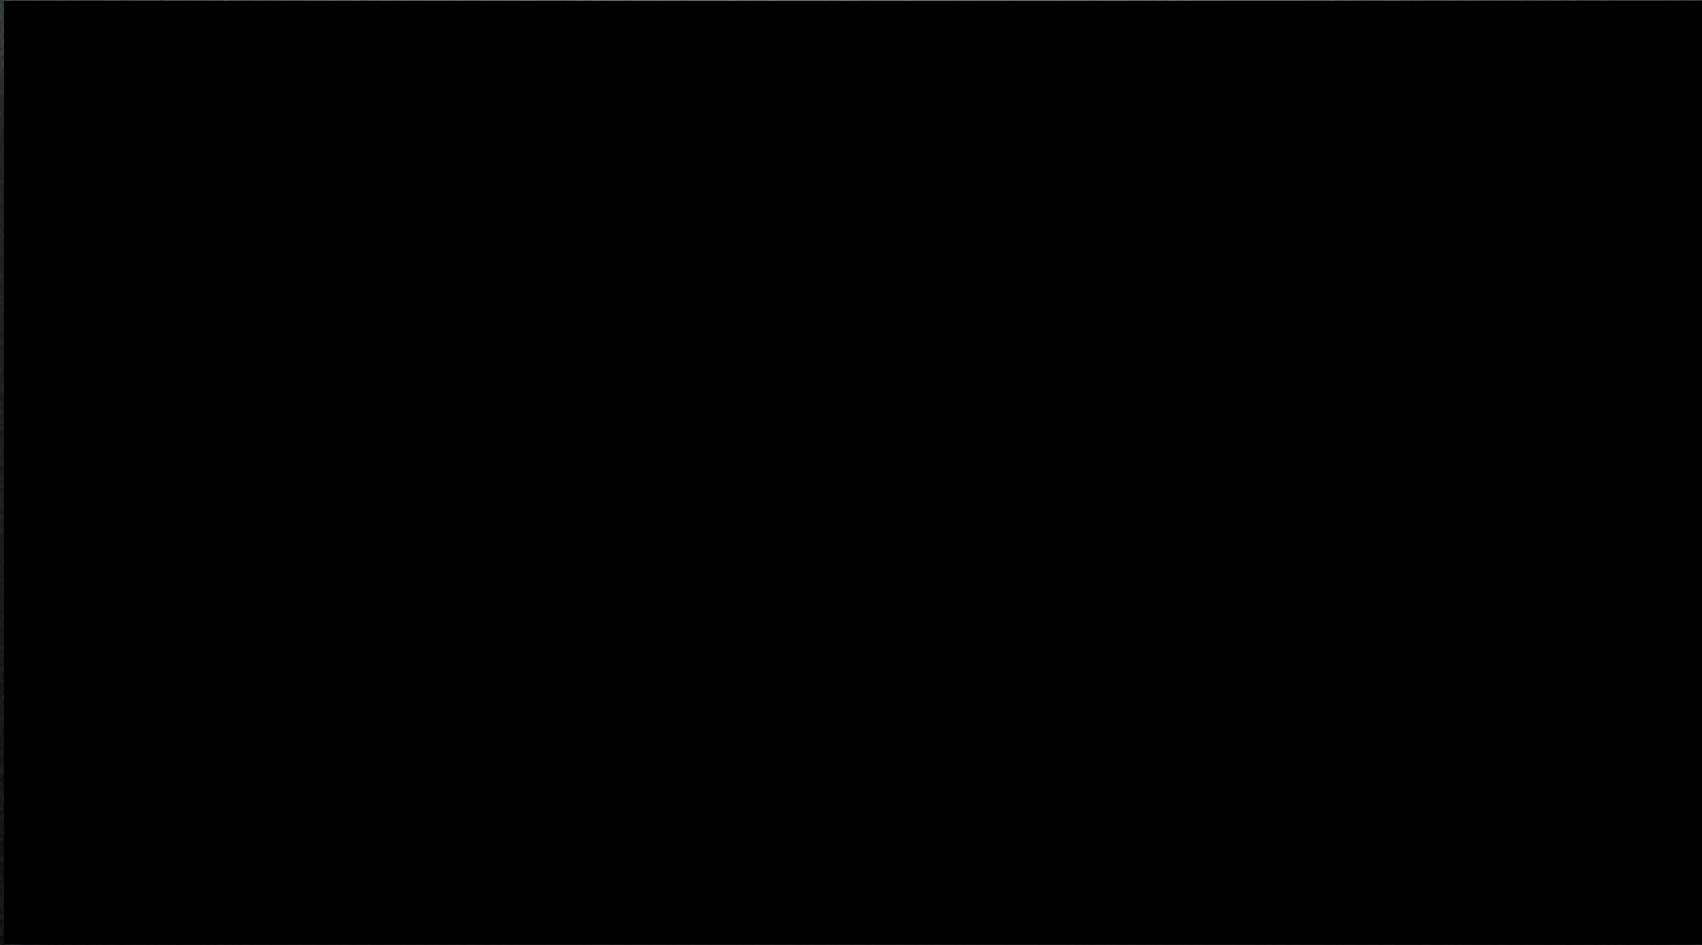

On the night of December 7, 1946, the hotel was filled to capacity with over 280 guests including shoppers, travelers, World War II soldiers eager to rebuild their lives, and 40 of Georgia's most Around three o'clock in the morning, the elevator operator noticed the smell of smoke around the fifth floor. Panicked, she descended to the lobby then

According to their stationery, the hotel was advertised as being absolutely fireproof, even though it was designed without fire alarms, fire escapes or a sprinkler system.

★ Mill Workers Motivation

Edit 0 0 1 ...

Due to the work conditions in mills the mill bosses knew they needed something to keep their workers motivated and coming to work each day. In an effort to make the mill workers as happy as possible they started textile league baseball teams so that the families would have something to look forward to as well as enjoy. Because baseball is a team sport the whole family could be involved from the men playing, women and children watching and cheering as well as the children holding their on events near the ball park. League Baseball helped mill workers releave their stress through these social events and entertainment.

In an article written by Greg Deal he states that , "Textile League baseball was something once woven into the fabric of everyday millvillage life. The times fromthe late 1800s through the 1950's were special int hat they bonded the human spirit with a sport called baseball. Tis developing sport caught on quickly in the South and was embraced by mill-village workers.

Deal also stated that "These weren't just baseball games. They were social events. Hundereds flocked to watch a little baseball, but al;so to participate in sack reaces, enhoj the barbecues and listen to concerts.
